THE KEY OF DEATH.-The following singular tradition is related of a key in a collection of curiosities preserved in the arsenal at Venice: About the year 1600 one of those dangerous men, in whom extraordinary talent is only the fearful source of crime and wickedness beyond that of ordinary men, came to establish himself as a merchant or trader in Venice. The stranger, whose name was Tebaldo, became enamored of the daughter of an ancient house, already affianced to another. He de-manded her hand in marriage, and was, of course, rejected. Enraged at this, he studied how to be revenged. Profoundly skilled in the mechanical arts, he allowed himself no rest until he had invented the most formidable weapon that could be imagined. This was a key of large size, the handle of which was so constructed that it could be turned round with little difficulty. When turned it disclosed a spring, which, on pressure, launched from the other end a needle or lancet of such fineness that it entered the flesh and buried itself there without leaving any external trace.

Tebaldo waited at the door of the church in which the maiden whom he loved was about to receive the nuptial benediction. The assassin sent the slender steel unperceived into the Pure Drugs and Chemicals, Patent Medicines, breast of the unsuspecting bridegroom. The wounded man had no suspicion of injury, but seized with sharp and sudden pain in the midst of the ceremony, he fainted, and was carried to his own house amid the lamentations of the bridal party. Vain was all the skill of the physicians, who could not divine the cause of prescriptions.

Special attention given to the compounding of prescriptions. this strange illness, and in a few days he died. Tebaldo again demanded the hand of the young maiden from her parents, and received a second refusal; they, too, perished miserably in a few days. The alarm that these deaths, which appeared almost miraculous, occasioned, excited the utmost vigilance of the magistrates; and when, on close examination of the bodies, the small instrument was found in the gangrened flesh, terfor was universal; every one feared for his own life. The maiden thus cruelly orphaned had passed the first month of her mourning in a couvent, when Tebaldo, hoping to bend her to his will, entreated to speak to her at the gate. Her reply was most decisively in the negative. Tebaldo, beside himself with rage, attempted to wound her through the grate, and succeeded. The obscurity of the place prevented his actions from being observed. On her return to her room the maiden felt a pain in her breast, and uncovering it she found it spotted with a single drop of blood. The pain increased; the surgeons who hastened to her assistance, taught by the past, wasted no time in conjecture, but, cutting deep into the wounded part, extracted the needle before any mortal mischief had commenced, and saved the life of the lady. The State Inquisition used every means to discover the hand which dealt these insidious and irresistible blows. The visit of Tebaldo to the convent caused suspicion to fall heavily upon him. His house was carefully searched, the infamous invention discovered and he perished on the gibbet.

PRETENDING TO BE DROWNED .- Society at West Rutland, Vt., and Cleveland, Ohio, is stirred to its deepest depths by the particulars of a very sad affair, in which the names of two very respectable families are involved. It seems that a few years ago a wealthy gentleman named Barron resided in the former place, and beheving truly enough that there was a world of wealth concealed beneath the mountains of Vermont in the shape of pure white marble, he began the task of getting it out for market. The business was then in its infancy, and was not so well understood as it is now. Mr. Barron failed and was reduced to comparative poverty. He had two daughters. In the days of his prosperity he had been to them a fond and indulgent parent, and had given them an education which would have fitted them to adorn any society in the world. One of the young ladies, with heroic fortitude and devotion, determined not only to support herself, but to do something for the maintenance of the family, and pushing out to Cleveland, soon succeeded in finding employment as a teacher. It is seldom that girls of such resolute will fall preys to the tempter. But it seems Miss Barron met her evil fate there in the person of a young man named Williams, the son of a wealthy gentleman, though he himself was a bankrupt. They became enamored of each other, but the story of their stolen interviews and earnest longings is known only to themselves. One day Williams went to the tiver to bathe, leaving his clothes in the boat. He never returned to his home; the next day the boat and clothes were found, and all Cleveand bewailed the fate of the young man who was believed to be sleeping beneath the dark waters of the Cuyahoga river. The young lady had previously disappeared from Cleveland and returned to Rutland. A day or two after Williams "death" he, too, appeared at the home of the girl, a marriage was celebrated, and the parties started upon their wedding tour. This was the 14th of May last. Since then they have not been heard from, and it has been known for some time that the fascinating and accomplished "William Sheldon" who married Miss Barron, and the drowned young Williams, of Cleveland, were one and the same parties. It has transpired, too, that Williams forged his father's name for large sums of money, and it is surmised that upon the fruits of this rascality the parties are living in Europe. Officers have been on the alert for the runaways for some time, but without success. ORGANIC WEAKNESS.

Immediately cured and Full Vigor Restored.

This distressing Affection—which renders life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgencies. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the natural powers are lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged, the Physical and Mental Functions weakened. Loss of Procreative Power.
